Tip 2: Cold Calling vs. Texting â?? Why Texting Works Wonders

Cold calling might have been a traditional approach, but letâ??s face it, it could be more effective in todayâ??s digital age. People are busier than ever, and answering a call from an unknown number can be off-putting. On the other hand, texting is convenient, non-intrusive, and can respond to the recipientâ??s convenience. Studies show that text messages have a much higher response rate than cold calling, making it a win-win for you and your aged leads!

Tip 3: Craft Engaging and Personalized Text Messages

When texting aged leads, itâ??s crucial to personalize your messages. Start by addressing them by name so they know itâ??s not just another automated spam message. Keep your texts concise, engaging, and relevant to their needs. Highlight the benefits of your Medicare Advantage plans and supplement insurance without overwhelming them with information. Remember, you only have a few seconds to capture their attention, so make every word count!

Tip 4: Timing Matters â?? Follow Up Strategically

Timing is everything when it comes to texting aged Medicare leads. Avoid bombarding them with messages, as it may come across as pushy or annoying. Instead, follow up strategically by sending several messages over a few days. This approach keeps you at the forefront of their minds without being overwhelming. Be patient and give them time to respond. Persistence combined with a respectful approach is the key to success!
